The Procure project team encourages you to visit and join a new reference site on eProcurement: the eProcurement forum on www.epractice.eu.

Coordinated by practitioners, this interactive library, in which you will find numerous case studies and even more discussions, offers an excellent tool for exchanges on best practices and analysis of failures. Amongst several communities created on this platform devoted to knowledge sharing, you can find one dedicated to the electronic public buying chain, which has particularly stirred our interest.

The eProcurement Forum at www.epractice.eu is an initiative sponsored by the European Commission to help all the practitioners in public electronic procurement ("eProcurement") in Europe to meet and share their experiences and knowledge, to ask and provide support. The community is open to practitioners from European administrations, from public and private organizations, from academia and research centers. Hopefully such variety of stakeholders (which we experience in the Procure project too) will provide different contributions, approaches and points of view.

Today, the eProcurement community has already more than 350 members out of the 13 000 members of epractice.eu.

You can note that from now on a special banner symbolizing our support to this initiative is on the left menu of this website. Now, it's up to you!
