

Upcoming Procure Final conference

Contributed by Maciej MURMYLO
02-25-2009
Last updated on 03-11-2009

The Procure European project has confirmed the interest of sharing model for the regional public market places. Furthermore, without forgetting the interoperability issues allowing local solutions to exchange in order to overcome borders remaining in the domain of public purchasing. Wider concurrence allowing better use of public money, reducing of costs thanks to a multi-entity base and open-source solutions, cutting off red tape for small and medium enterprises – these objectives may be now easily addressed by the European administrations!

After 21 months of experimentation in five pilot sites across EU, the time has come to assess results obtained and share our findings with you. On behalf of the Procure consortium, the Regional Council of Burgundy has the pleasure to invite you on the final conference leading to a complete overview of results obtained. Our sessions will be held on March 16th and 17th in Brussels, as follow:

Presentation to the representatives of European regions - 16th March (afternoon)

The Procure project, consisting of a network of regional concentrators, has proven that this model was applicable in various contexts, and allows a quick development of a shared tool, while generating important savings.

For registration and additional information, download the program.

Procure final conference - 17th March

This presentation is open to all interested parties willing to participate in the development of e-government and e-procurement. It will address the areas for improvement and present the feedback of the experimenting regions.

For registration and additional information, download the program.